

Image for B2B purposes only - not cleared

SISU

Sisu follows a ten person cycling team from a small community in Maine as they take on the journey to compete in a 1,358KM race around the perimeter of Iceland.

The documentary combines an observational filmmaking style with elements of a travelogue as well as the engagement of action sport. Set just after the summer solstice, the team faces rapidly changing road and weather conditions as they push forward against the 72 hour time limit.

The film explores the motivations of amateur athletes as they pursue a massive physical challenge and considers the role that adventure plays in contemporary life.

Duration
1 x 56-minutes

Country of Production
USA

Director & Producer
John Mercer
Life Without Basketball

A Key + Kitestring production

Web-site access:
SISU